

Jeff Ix

Member, Board of Advisors
Member, Strategic Planning Committee

Jeff is a former Supply Chain Director for Procter and Gamble. Jeff's career with Procter and Gamble started in manufacturing and ultimately spanned 36 years including multiple US locations, 10 years in Geneva Switzerland, and Director of Supply Chain Operations and Integration for multiple acquisitions in the US and Europe. Prior to retiring, Jeff was responsible for Gillette Global Supply Chain Strategy, Planning and Initiative management based in South Boston.

Jeff served for several years on the Greater Boston Food Bank's Innovative Development Council prior to joining the Board of Advisors in 2024.

A graduate of Duke University School of Engineering, Jeff served for many years on the Duke University Engineering Alumni Council and the Engineering Board of Visitors. Jeff also served as Vice President of the American International Club of Geneva.